

Understanding Euroscepticism

Special issue editors: Liesbet Hooghe and Gary Marks

Acta Politica (2007)

Introduction

Liesbet Hooghe and Gary Marks—“The Sources of Euroscepticism: Introduction”

I. Euroscepticism across time

Richard Eichenberg and Russell Dalton – “Post-Maastricht Blues: The transformation of citizen support for European integration, 1973—2004”

Leonard Ray—“Mainstream Euroscepticism – Trend or Oxymoron?”

II. Euroscepticism across Europe

Geoffrey Evans and Sarah Butt—“Explaining Change in British Public Opinion on the European Union: Top Down or Bottom Up?”

Tapio Raunio – “Softening but Persistent: Euroscepticism in the Nordic EU Countries”

Ivan Llamazares and Wladimir Gramacho – “Eurosceptics among Euro-enthusiasts. An analysis of Southern European Public Opinions”

III. The Sources of Euroscepticism

Lauren McLaren—“Explaining Mass-Level Euroscepticism: Identity, Interests, and Institutional Distrust”

André Krouwel and Koen Abts – Varieties of Euroscepticism and Populist Mobilisation: Transforming attitudes from mild Euroscepticism to harsh Eurocynicism

Claes de Vreese —“A Spiral of Euroscepticism: The Media’s Fault?”

Bernhard Wessels – “Discontent and European Identity: Three Types of Euroscepticism”

Catherine de Vries and Kees van Kersbergen—“Interests, Identity and Political Allegiance in the European Union.”

Liesbet Hooghe, JingJing Huo, and Gary Marks—“Does Occupation Shape Attitudes on Europe: Benchmarking Validity and Parsimony”